INTRODUCTION.

THOUGH the excellency of our laws, and the benevolence of the national character, seem to have made a provision for almost every species of distress to which the poor are liable, yet situations will sometimes arise, which the most active and watchful charity could not at first foresee.

The children of soldiers, sailors, and other indigent persons, bereft of their parents, at a distance from relations, and too young to afford the necessary information respecting settlements, are often left destitute of protection and support, at an age when they are incapable of earning subsistence, sistence, and contending with the dangers which surround them.

Females of this description are in a peculiar manner objects of compassion, and have also a double claim to the care of the humane and virtuous, from being not only exposed to the miseries of want and idleness, but, as they grow up, to the sollicitations of the vicious, and to all the dreadful consequences of early seduction.

This CHARITY owes its origin to that vigilant and active Magistrate, the late Sir JOHN FIELDING, who had long observed, that though the laws of this kingdom had provided a parish settlement for every person, by birth, parentage, apprenticeship, &c. yet many cases continually occurred in which it was with difficulty that such settlements could be ascertained. He therefore proposed the plan of an ASYLUM for deserted Orphan Girls, which was approved of by many noblemen and gentlemen, equally solicitous to remove, as far as they could, could, this source of female wretchedness ; and, at a meeting held on the 13th of May, 1758, the house now occupied was hired for that purpose.

By the exertions of those who first encouraged the establishment, and of others who have continued to prosecute the plan with the same unremitting ardour, their benevolent intentions have been rewarded with the most signal success.

The generous and discerning public have bestowed the means, which have prospered in the hands of the Guardians ; by whose care two hundred deserted females are daily sheltered and protected from vice and want, supplied with food and raiment proper for them, and taught whatever can render them useful in their station, or comfortable and happy in themselves. Carefully instructed in the principles of religion, in reading, writing, needlework, and household business, and trained to habits of industry and regularity, a supply of diligent and sober domestics, ness is provided for that public, which, by its contributions, has so nobly acquired a right to their services.

The laws and regulations at first made for conducting the business, and promoting the advancement of this CHARITY, have undergone considerable changes, from the time of its first establishment to the present year, 1789; and when any of these have been found inadequate to the end proposed, or, from change of circumstances, have become obsolete, they have been occasionally altered or cancelled.

The promoters of this CHARITY, at its first institution, came to the following resolutions :

I. That the subscribers for its support be denominated Guardians.

II. That the general and principal direction of the affairs of this CHARITY be vested in a meeting of the Guardians, to be called a General Court.

III. That

III. That the business in detail shall be more immediately in the management of a Committee, annually to be appointed for that purpose by the said General Court.

GENERAL COURT.

I. That such General Court shall meet at the ASYLUM, on the four following stated quarterly-days, to wit, the second Thursday in January, the first Thursday in April (except the same falls in Easter-week, then on the Thursday following) the first Thursdays in July and October in every year, of which meetings notice is to be given by public advertisements, and to the Members of the Committee by letter from the Secretary.

II. That such General Court shall consist of a President, six Vice-presidents, a Treasurer and Secretary, and any number of Guardians who may chuse to attend, whereof seven at least must be present to form a Court.

III. That the powers of such General Court shall be unlimited and universal, with respect to the government of the CHARITY, in framing and passing, from time to time, all such rules and orders as shall be deemed necessary for the due regulation of the same, in any, and every respect whatsoever.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS OF THE
GENERAL COURT.

I. That the President and Vice-presidents shall be elected out of the Guardians at large, by the General Court.

II. That a Treasurer shall be appointed annually by the General Court, in April, who is to continue in such office and trust for one year, and no longer.

III. That

III. That a Secretary shall be appointed by the said General Court, to continue in office during good behaviour.

OFFICERS to be ELECTED BY THE
GENERAL COURT.

The Chaplain, Secretary, Physicians, Surgeons, Apothecary, Organist, Matron, and School-mistresses, are to be elected by the General Court.

rally to promote all other beneficial purposes respecting the same, there shall be a General Committee nominated from the list of Guardians, at every General Quarterly Court in April, which Committee is to consist of at least twenty in number, any five of whom shall be sufficient to form a Board, and be competent for the transacting of business; such Committee to meet on Thursday in every week, at the Asylum, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, or oftener if necessary.

II. The President, a Vice-president, or the Treasurer, if present, to preside at such Committee, and, in their absence, the senior Guardian, being of the General Committee; but, notwithstanding particular gentlemen are elected as a General Committee, for the immediate conduct of the CHARITY, every Guardian is at liberty to attend and vote at such Committees; and, in case there should be a less number than five of the General Committee attending, then any five of the Guardians present, though not of that Committee, shall be competent to form a Board, and transact business as aforesaid, and the senior Guardian present to take the chair.

III. No Guardian who serves this CHARITY with any kind of goods can be elected on the General Committee.

V. On the day of each Quarterly Court the Committee shall be previously summoned to meet at eleven o'clock precisely, when the chair shall be taken, in order to close the Quarterly Accounts, and to prepare the Report to be laid before the said Court.
